Historical paths

In Val San Nicolò along "Strada di Rusci"

This captivating itinerary starts from Pozza: to set off for Val San Nicolò, leave the car at the car park Saüch and ascend along the narrow wood that hides, on the left, the picturesque path "Strada de Rusci", so called because it was built by the Russian prisoners during the first World War. Follow the path, which alternates flat segments to moderate ascents, until you come across path n. 641 to "Lach de Lauscel" (Lagusel Lake). Turn left and cross the stream "Ruf de Sèn Nicolò" walking on the comfortable gangway above it and enter the wood. The path continues descending to an alluvial stony ground and then crossing the bed of the stream "Giaf". Make your way now to the dirt road of the last stretch of Val San Nicolò. Going down to Baita Ciampiè (1.826 m) you will reach the paved street to Saüch car park (2,15 h).

"While I was expecting"...Francesca Senette

All pregnancies are different. Every mother has heard this sentence almost once, but as long as you don't live it you will have some difficulties in understanding what it means. This is only one of the reasons why the famous journalist and anchorwoman Francesca Senette has written "Cose che non mi aspettavo (quando stavo aspettando)" (Things I didn't expect - while I was expecting). The book, a heap of "Truth, nothing more than the Truth" about pregnancy (of the second child) will be presented, tomorrow at 9.00 p.m. in the Town Council meeting room in Canazei, by the author, interviewed by the journalist Elisa Salvi. During a dialogue open to interventions and curiosities of the public (men, also present inside the book, are warmly invited), Senette talks about several aspects of these nine amazing months of a woman's life.

Did you know that...

In the very first years of the 20th century, the more promising boys from the valleys, including Val di Fassa, were beneficiaries of a monthly subvention of 16 florins, granted by the "Deutschen Schulverein" (ancient cultural organisations) of several Austrian cities. This way, the Austrian government gathered many young people to introduce to the teaching disciplines, to create a teaching group faithful to the Empire. The idea was to limit the diffusion of the increasing irredentist thoughts, especially in outlying areas like Val di Fassa, by transmitting the imperial principles at
