Author music notes with the Walkin' Jazz Quartet

Agritur El Mas is placed on Col dei Soldai hill over Moena. It can be reached from Moena on foot, but also by car. In case of bad weather, the show of the Walkin' Jazz Quartet, 3rd appointment of the festival "MoenArmonica", will take place inside the building.

The repertoire of the Walkin' Jazz Quartet, in concert today at 4.30 p.m. on the meadows nearby Agritur El Mas in Moena, is wide and refined. The group is composed by Walter Civettini, trumpet and flugelhorn, Stefano Raffaelli, piano, Flavio Zanon, double bass, and by Enrico Tommasini from Moena at the drums. They propose Italian author music, revisited in a contemporary and jazz way. The quartet plays tracks by Battisti, Tenco, Endrigo, De Andrè, Dalla, Conte, De Gregori, Gaber, Bennato, Jannacci, Fossati and more, with original compositions that are difficult to assign to a gender, always looking for transverse expressive modalities. The integration of acoustical music environments with electronic suggestions makes their music very involving.

High-level hikes

From Alba to Contrin Refuge

The cable car from Alba takes you up to Ciampac, where you walk through the grassy hollow and ascend to the left to Forcia Neigra (1,30 h). Follow path no. 613, getting across a pebbly stretch, thanks to the help of a sling that brings to the cleft between Torre Dantone and Sas Neigher. Skirt the rock, descending towards the ridge that separates the valleys Val San Nicolò and Val Contrin. Cross over the side of Varos, reaching Passo San Nicolò (2.338 m). Cross the plain in front of the Marmolada's south face, descend Pré de la Vaces and skirt the rock of Lasté de Contrin. You arrive at Contrin hollow, passing by the namesake stream, then ascend to the namesake refuge (1 h; 4 hrs). Go back to Alba through Val Contrin and along some conclusive steep turns (1h; 5,15 hrs).

So much fun with clown Molletta

Are you looking for funny wizardry, clown plays, bizarre juggles, air-balloon's sculptures, games and much circus Art? Fun and laughs are guaranteed at the "Molletta Comic Show", today at 9.00 p.m. by the events pavilion in Campitello. Protagonist of the show is clown Molletta, that is Matteo Trenti who, from Riva del Garda, has flown to Paris (like his colleague from Canazei, clown Nick) to learn the clownery art in one of the best schools. On stage, Molletta proposes an essential comic sense and old-style gags, that conquers straight both children and adults, as they recall myths such as the great Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton and the duo Laurel and Hardy. Trenti is also a gifted stilt-walker and organizes interesting and amusing laboratories for children.

Did you know that...

During the second half of the nineteenth century, the Ladin language aroused the interest amongst scientists and linguistics who reached the valley and used to ask people from Fassa, usually concentrated on their work in the fields and on looking after the cattle, in order to understand the features of that spoken language. This way, they started to fix the first characteristics of Ladin. Among the most important scholars there was Christian Schneller, Austrian school inspector who in 1870 started off the official studies on the spoken language of the Dolomites, the Anaunia and Friuli.
