Amazing hikes

In the wild Valsorda

Every logger of Fassa knows this valley. The wonderful and wild Valsorda, which brings to Latemar, stores along the namesake stream the tracks of the old "cava de le bore" (Trunks cave), a passage for logs and woods five km long, built with stones and rocks, attentively studied, from its slopes to its bends. In winter the frozen cave was used to become a sleigh slope where, until the Seventies, thousands of cubic metres of wood passed by. Start from Forno di Moena, following path n. 516, which starts from the entrance of the cave, which is crossed in many spots. Arrived at Valsorda dairy (1676 m - 2 hrs), expert hikers can go on towards Bivouac Latemar (2365 m - 1 h), whereas the less trained can walk along path n. 517 leading to Forno, thence take the street that goes either to Forno or to Medil.

Did you know that...

Also Val di Fassa has its own "Giotto": Franzeleto Bernard, "farmer-painter", born in Pera in 1875 and educated at the "Staatsgewerbeschule" in Innsbruck. During the years, he was a "travelling painter", becoming a good portraitist. Come back to the valley in 1911, he produced the frescoes' outlines of San Floriano in Canazei and he painted the altarpiece of the main altar in San Lorenzo's church in Pera, depicting the saint that protects the village. In the Ferdinandeum Museum in Innsbruck there is one of his most beautiful paintings (1912), that shows a family from Fassa in front of an hayloft.
