Bosso: "Six breaths" at sunrise on Col Margherita

Ezio Bosso (photo) performed – as soloist or director – for important orchestra: examples are the Wiener Kammer Orchester and the Chamber Orchestra of Europe. He also composed the sound track of many films, among which "Io non ho paura" by G. Salvatores.

Ezio Bosso, precious musician, composer and orchestra director, performs tomorrow at 6.00 a.m. for the "Dawn in the Dolomites", the morning session of the summer festival "The Sounds of the Dolomites", on Col Margherita: a first and - for sure - striking time for his new composition. Bosso - on the piano - and six violoncellists of the "Italian Cello Consort" - accompanying him - play the composition "Six breaths", welcoming in a magic atmosphere the sunrise on the Dolomites' peaks. You can reach the venue from San Pellegrino Pass by Col Margherita cable car (opened exceptionally from 4 to 6 a.m.; 8 euro round-trip, drink included at the arrival), thence on foot for 30 min. In case of bad weather, the show will be performed at 6.00 p.m. at Navalge Theatre in Moena.

Did you know that...

In Val di Fassa there are four "Siti d'Importanza Comunitaria" (SIC) – area of community importance. They are areas particularly rich in vegetation and in presence of exclusive animal species, sometimes in danger of extinction, or animal typical of the Dolomites. The SIC of Val di Fassa are the peat bogs in Val Duron and Roncon, the orographic left of San Nicolò Valley and the so called Nodo del Latemar. In these environments there are biotopes (for example peat bogs or basins) where vegetal organism and animals of the same - or different - species live.
