Did you know that...

In the ancient times the "maridoz" (wedding time) in Val di Fassa was characterized by many traditions. One of these was the "Sgrign" the wedding chest, that usually decorated by local artisans with a six-point star representing a wish of warmth, light and fertility to the couple. The Sgrign contained the trousseau and was carried in pump from the girl's family house to the new house. The groom welcomed his wife and her belongings together with a document that indicated the value of each object in dowry. The chest was kept in the "stua" (living room) or in the bedroom.
