HIGHLIGHT

THE SKY FESTIVAL

The peaks of Col Rodella (Campitello) and Belvedere (Canazei) are not famous only because of the stunning view, but also as starting point for paragliders, whose favourite season has still to come. In autumn, the ascensional wind circulating around the Sella massive attracts here in the valley lots of paragliders and hang-gliders. From September 29 to October 1 Campitello hosts the "Fassa Sky Expo", festival organized by the Icarus Flying Team. During the festival, free equipment tests, music, entertainment and local cuisine at the eventspavillion of Campitello will complete the three-days event.

Itineraries

FROM MOENA TO MONTE TOÀC

This "High-level walk" starts from the picturesque hamlet of Sorte, over Moena: follow the easy road that leads to Malga Peniola. Before reaching it, take pathway no. 521. The taxing trail passes by the area named Frata and turns towards Coston da Ciamp, arriving at the peak Sas da Ciamp (2.193 m; 2,30 hrs.). Here, from this high and panoramic point, a lot of hiking trails begin: you can go back along the same footpath or expand your hike. Fit hikers can descend from Forcella Peniola first on path no. 524 and then on path no. 517 till Costalunga Pass and thence go back to Moena along path no. 519 (6.30 hrs.). Alternatively, they can walk along the ridge of Toàc pastures, reaching Mount Toàc (2.319 m). Along the footpath no. 517 you can return to Malga Peniola and then to Moena (5,30 hrs.).

Did you know that...

In the nineteenth century Val di Fassa's peaks represented an amazing challenge for alpine pioneers. In 1887 Georg Winkler, a Bavarian seventeen-year-old, came to the valley and decided to climb the Torri del Vajolet alone. He chose the highest: with his canvas shoes, with soles wrapped in string to help him grip the rocks better, he ascended with a rope, at the summit of which he fixed a hook, which hitched on natural handholds. He chinned with the only strength of his arms. He reached the peak and he wrote a note with his name on it, signing that way his conquest of that tower that since then keeps his name.
