HIGHLIGHT

MOUNTAIN PAINTERS EXHIBITION IN CANAZEI

The emotion given by the peaks reported on a canvas. Until September 9, at the art gallery TanArt in Canazei, you can find the exhibition "Painting the mountain, the great Dolomitic muse", about thirty works by twentieth painters of the XX Century, mostly from Trentino, but also German and from Rome, who have interpreted, under the influence of the poetic of Romanticism of the time, the sense of the sublime, felt in front of the magnificence of the peaks. Among the paintings, those of the native Fernando Brunel and Giuseppe Soraperra, of the South-Tirolean Josef Costazza who has already been protagonist of a personal exhibition at the Tanart, but above all "Cows at the pastures at altitude" by Leonardo Dudreville (1885-1975), the most artistically valuable one. Dudreville, a divisionist, stands out for the use of the colour, prevailing on the drawing.

Did you know that...

According to the studies, the roots of the Ladin literature are to be found, more than in the first written texts (that date back to the end of the XVI Century) considered "Paralliterature", essential for the daily life of a people that was mostly illiterate, in the "conties" and "lejudes" (legends), which means in the oral tradition. This interpretation, related to the tradition of the oral transmission of the legends of the Dolomites, that has made necessary a different evaluation compared to the scientific one, an open approach, similar to that of the folk literary science.

Initiatives reserved to the guests with the Val di Fassa Card (ask your hotel/apartment). Enrolments required within the previous day by the Tourist Offices. The activities are reserved to the guests of the associated structures of Val di Fassa Tourist Board.
