HIGHLIGHT

TAKE THE SHOT AT “L STONT”

After a massive restoration, “L Stont” was opened in Campitello in spring 2018: the shootstand was built in 1905 and used until the outbreak of the First World War. The building is one of the few existing shootstand of the local troopers, who were in charge of defending the borderlines: the “Scizeres”, shooters or “registered riflemen”, in this case from Campitello, Mazzin and Canazei. After the Great War, the tiny building became a house and was also used as municipal deposit. The shootstand is nowadays one of the few shootstands that are still intact or almost, and the only one in Val di Fassa, that’s why it’s also part of the outside section of the Fassa Ladin Museum (guided visit every Tuesday, at 5.30 p.m.).

Itineraries

FROM PORDOI PASS, TO THE PIZ AND TO RIFUGIO BOÈ

Reach the Pordoi pass (at 2.239 metres) and take the cable car to Sass Pordoi (at 2.950 metres), then descend on the rocks to the near Pordoi saddle (0.20 hs). Go straight and take the path n. 638 that leads to the base of Piz Boè. Go up along the southern side on wide steps and debris ledges, and reach the peak beside Capanna Piz Fassa at 3.152 metres (1.15 hs; 1.35 hs). After a break to admire the extraordinary panorama, go down to the north-western side, pass a rocky jump along an equipped stretch with an iron rope and reach quickly the refuge Boè at 2.871 metres (0.30; 2.10 hs). Go back to the Pordoi saddle (0.45; 2.50 hrs), along the wide steps that constitute the basement of Piz Boè. Go back to the cable car ascending to Sass Pordoi (0.20; 3.10 hrs).

Did you know that...

The Salvan is a wild man, one of those characters that, according to the belief of the local people, lived on the hills, in the woods and on the pastures together with Vivene and Bregostane, and to which the reasons of natural phenomena, otherwise impossible to explain, were allocated. The Salvan, unlike the gentle Vivene and the mischief Bregostane, had a two-faced aspect and could be good or bad according to the occasions.

Initiatives reserved to the guests with the Val di Fassa Card (ask your hotel/apartment). Enrolments required within the previous day by the Tourist Offices. The activities are reserved to the guests of the associated structures of Val di Fassa Tourist Board.
