Itineraries

FROM SORAGA TO BARBIDE AND THE CENTRE OF TAMION

This easy walk starts from the centre of Soraga: take the streets Strada del Cioch and Strada de Barbida, and you will arrive at the area bearing the same name. Got to the little Church, take the little street on the right, pass beyond a bow vault and then turn left upwards to the mountain. Go straight on and then right, ascending through wood and pastures, until you come to a plain with a larch and firewood. A very nice panoramic point over Soraga, Moena and Tamion is here upward on the left. Proceed going ahead in the curvy path that brings you to a centenary larch wood. Beyond an ancient barn burnt by sun, you enter Tamion hamlet. Here you find two fountains, where you can get fresh. When you reach the centre of the hamlet, go back along the same route.

Did you know that...

Among the most important linguists who studied the Ladin language, Graziadio Isaia Ascoli, professor of Università degli Studi in Milano (who died with the title of life's senator with linguistic merits) played an important role for the study of the subject. Ascoli published in 1873 the "Archivio glottologico Italiano". In the first volume of the monumental work there's also "Saggi Ladini", that – together with the previous works by the Austrian Christian Schneller – triggered confrontation, often polemic for nationalistic reasons: at the time the Ladin was one of the most intriguing subjects.
